Message

In India, due to rapid population growth and economic development, development that seeks a rich life is rapidly progressing. However, this rapid population growth and economic development have caused a large environmental burden, and environmental pollution such as India's water, air and soil are also proceeding at the same time. India's water shortages and water pollution are said to be "the worst water crisis in history", and this water crisis is caused by the responsibility of developed countries pursuing profits in India But there are.

In order to solve environmental problems, people themselves learn correct knowledge through environmental education, and they themselves improve the environment. To that end, it is important to provide our experience, knowledge and sustainable environmental technology. Please support and cooperate with India environmental improvement activities conducted by Japan Water Guard - India Chapter.

Sincerely yours.
